1968 Aston Martin DBS, certified in writing from Aston Martin to have been built for the personal use of the chairman, Sir David Brown.

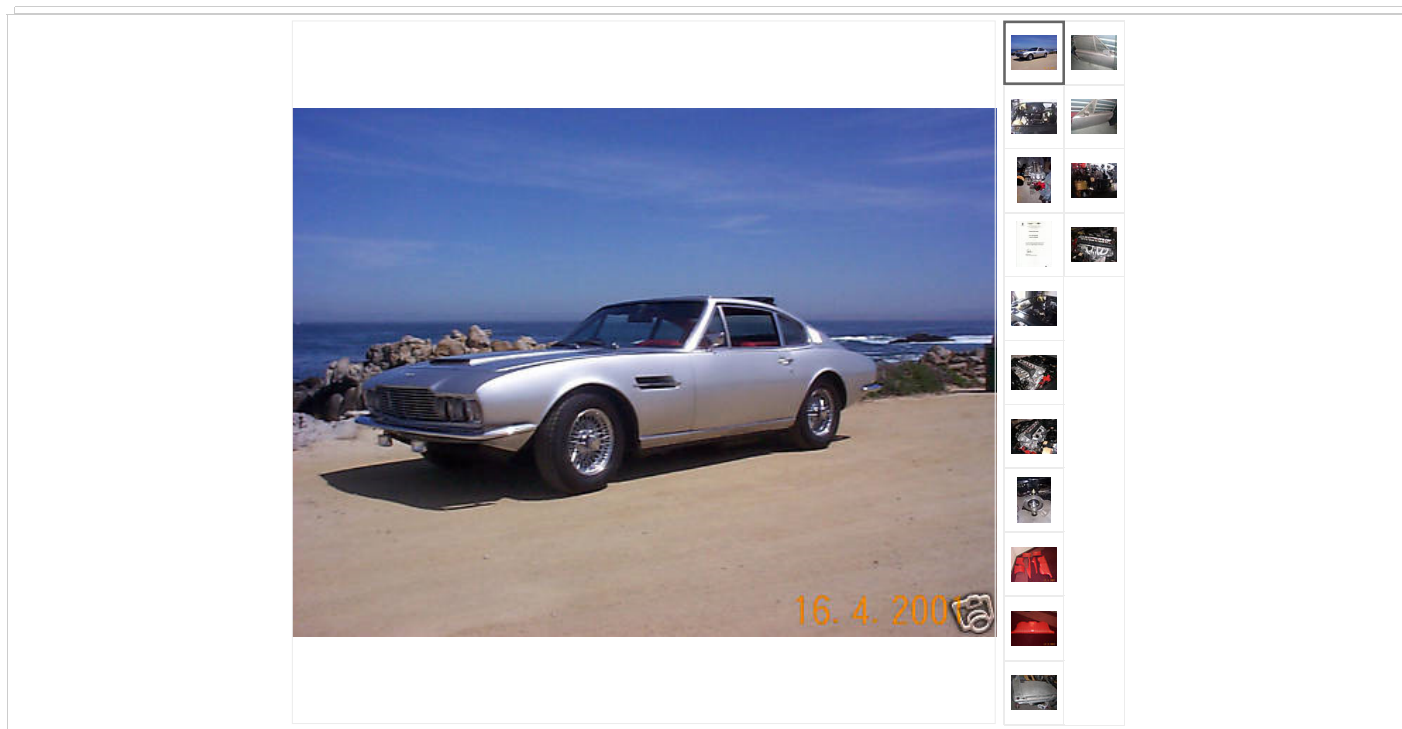

The car is in the process of restoration but not much has been done on the car for several years as I have been going through a divorce. Which is also the reason for the sale. The car is number matching and absolutely complete except that the front and back windscreens cracked upon removal and will need to be replaced. The front chassis has had all of the rust repair made to it and has been primed and repainted. What remains is replacing the inner and outer sills on both sides and repairing a rust through in the trunk. Then it is a matter of putting the skin back on, painting and reassembling the car. The car was upgraded to Koni rear shocks from the original hydraulic type but I have the originals and will include them and any spares that I have with the car.

The interior leather of the car is in perfect condition except for the rear seat bottom, which has cracks in it and should be repaired or replaced.

Included in the documentation on the car is a copy of the factory build sheet from when the car was sold from Aston Martin, with official notation of it being the "ex-chairman's car", a copy of all Aston Martin service records through approximately the first 25,000 miles, plus copies of the registration for both of the German gentlemen that owned the car prior to me.

I will be happy to supply more pictures upon request. I will supply all of the disassembly pictures to the winner of the auction and I have hundreds.

I will also put with the car the original owners manual, workshop manual, parts manual, and a cross reference parts list compiled by the Aston Martin Owners Club with the car.
